

What Is MoVillage.com?

A personal blog/online magazine/website, that is being built to share concepts of POSITIVITY and POSITIVE generational wisdom gained from my (Gen Xer, Army vet) life experiences and from those lessons learned from some great people who have been influential in my life experience. In life, a mentor story, a true leadership story, that's a story that we all should be able to relate to. There is something to be done if you know someone that cannot recall a story about valuable mentor(s). If there is an opportunity. Become one for them.

The site will highlight mentorship/reverse mentorship and leadership, sharing stories and experiences dedicated to people like my #1 mentor (my grandmother – God rest her soul) and others that have filled my life with positivity and wisdom.

Most of us share in knowing or have known our top mentors and leaders and what they shared with us in those categories. It will be a site geared toward recycling the “good” from the old with the “great” of the new. That is why I chose the logo to represent her and recently received official approval from the US Patent and Trademark Office, after submitting it for registration. MoVillage.com will also create and post stories and videos here and on YouTube on the MoVillage Channel (being built) which will also promote and focus on the concepts of “the WISDOM and ENERGY of our ELDERS combined with the ENERGY and WISDOM of our YOUTH.” The concepts of Wisdom and Energy and Energy and Wisdom.

Most of us have experience with these things and in most cases the application of positive wisdom and positive energy, is usually a winning combination. “Plain and simple, there are necessary pathways to growth and successes in life.....we always need MO(re) of them, because “LIFE BE LIFE-ING” and you have to be ready for it.”

And yes, it does “take a village” in a lot of instances and in today's world, we do need “MO(re)” of it. – MoVillage.com